The trip was made by automobile, eight large touring cars furnishing transportation. The start was made at the Public Library and the first stopping place was the old Mastuxet graveyard, a place of much historic interest, as it is near the homes of the first white settlers of the town, and contains the dust of many persons of prominence in Colonial days. An hour was spent in visiting the graves and deciphering inscriptions on the mossy stones. A brief service was fittingly held about the tombstones of the Babcock family, and a poem, commemorating the early settlers was read by Mr. Ethan Wilcox. The party then proceeded by way of the Shore Road, obtaining fine views of the ocean and of the beautiful ponds which line the shores. A swift passage along the Post Road...
