The calculation involves a solution of Kepler s problem, and therefore a general equation for it cannot be given, but an approximate value is readily obtained which will be quite accurate enough for our present purposes. with a uniform velocity in traversing each of these ten sections of its orbit. The distances of the middle points of these sections from the perihelion is given in the sixth column. The distances in the fifth column are each equal to $r+1$. Subtracting 1 and taking the reciprocals gives us the numbers in Let us assume a comet whose aphelion distance is 399 units, and its 199 perihelion unity.
