ORPHAN DINAH (CLASSIC REPRINT) (PAPERBACK)

Forgotten Books, 2017. Paperback. Condition: New. Language: English . Brand New Book  Print on Demand . Excerpt from Orphan Dinah In this hour, after noon on a day of mid September, the light was changing, not gradually at the sun s proper declension, but under the forces of a south-west wind bringing up vapour at twenty miles an hour from the distant sea. From the rounded and weathered masses of the Beacon, the hill s10ped abruptly and a receding foreground of dying fern and grey, granite boulders broke on a gap of such extent that earth, reappearing far below, was already washed by the milky azure of the air, through which It glimmered and receded and presently again rose to lofty lands beyond. The ground plan was a mighty cup, over which the valley undulated, rising here to knap and knoll, falling there into coombs and plains, sinking to its lowest depths immediately beneath the View point, where Dart wound about lesser hills, not small in themselves, yet dwarfed by the greatness of the expanse and the loftiness of the horizon s brim. Upon that distant and irregular line, now melting into the thick air, border heights and saliencies sank and rose, repeating on a vaster scale the anatomy of the river basin. They lifted through the hazes until they faded Upon the sight into the gathering Clouds, that loomed still full of light, above their grey confines. The sea was long since hidden. A chief quality of this Spectacle appeared in the three dis similar and different coverings that draped it. The body of the earth lay wrapped in a triple robe, and each garment was slashed and broken, so that its texture fiowed into and revealed the others. Every furlong of these rolling leagues, save only where...
